Motorcycle is their canvas
Royal Enfield concludes Art of Motorcycling season 2

VIKRAM CHAUDHARY

FOR A MAJORITY of Indians, a two-wheeler is a vehicle for commuting from point A to B. For many others, it is an aspiration. For a few, it is expression. That expression is what Royal Enfield wanted to capture when it started the Art of Motorcycling campaign on August 12, 2020—to provide riders and creators a platform to express their love for motorcycling through creative illustrations.

The motorcycle maker has now concluded the second edition of the Art of Motorcycling. With over 15,000 registrations, a 50% jump from the first year, we have seen phenomenal traction towards the initiative. The winners have been chosen by renowned jury members—fashion designers Shantanu and Nikhil, illustrator Vimal Chandran and photographer Bobby Joshi—and Royal Enfield’s community.," Royal Enfield said in a statement.

This year’s top three winners are Harsh Namdeo (Bina, MP), Ekant Singh (Noida) and Gautam Gajbar (Mumbai) who will co-create a capsule range with Royal Enfield. The next three rank-holders—Prashant Singh (New Delhi), Abhirath NC (Kerala) and Pratamesh Ranajit Shedge (Mumbai)—will intern with Royal Enfield design.

Puneet Sood, national business head, North & West India, Nepal, Bhutan, and global head, Apparel Business, said, "Our motorcycles have been the perfect canvas for customisation. The genesis of Art of Motorcycling was to celebrate the ethos of motorcycling through the lens of art. Eight out of 10 participants were non-Royal Enfield owners and majority participation came from small towns."